DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 1/10/06 is in compliance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.97. Accordingly, the information disclosure statement is being considered by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

3. Claims 1-5 and 7-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Meixner et al. (USPN 7,076,838).
4. Meixner discloses the claimed hand-held power tool handle device with a vibration-shielding unit and a guide device for guiding a motion of a handle element 3 which is movable relative to the power tool body, wherein the motion is at least substantially along a straight line. The handle element is positioned at a distance away from the power tool body 11. Two force-transmission elements 19,21 which cross over each other. The force-transmission elements are interconnected in a pivoting manner by a connecting element 39 located in a central region of at least one of the force-transmission elements. Each of the force-transmission elements is displaceable supported at one end. One return element and/or elastically deformable impact-absorption element 15,17 for returning the handle element. The return element operatively engages with the transmission elements.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Meixner et al. (USPN 7,100,706) in view of Weber (GB 2171045A).

6. Meixner discloses the claimed power tool handle device as discussed above, but fails to disclose wherein at least one of the force-transmission elements is supported on at least one end such that it is displaceable in a direction extending perpendicular to the direction of motion.

Weber discloses a hand-held power tool handle device comprising a vibration-shielding unit via 15 and a guide device via 11c,17,18 for guiding a motion of a handle element 12 which is movable relative to the power tool body 11, wherein the motion is at least substantially along a straight line, and two force-transmission elements 15 supported on at least one end such that are displaceable in a direction extending perpendicular to the direction of motion of the handle element for the purpose of efficiently preventing transmission of vibrations generated in the body to the handle. I would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to have provided Meixner's force-transmission elements supported on at least one end such that it is displaceable in a direction extending perpendicular to the direction of motion as taught by Weber in order to efficiently prevent transmission of vibration to the handle.
